

Restaurants

The restaurants at the park are all centrally managed by the Food Management Department in-house at the park. They have a simple cash register that keeps track of each customer and the food they have purchased. Customers pay in tickets or money or credit card. The information for orders is captured at each register by an independent printing roll receipt. It is sufficient for tabulating the register at the end of the night to calculate sales and profits, but each register operates independently of the other and is combined by the accounting department into a giant spreadsheet.
